Dear Mr. Speaker:

We have the honour to submit to you our report setting out the areas, boundaries and names of the 87 electoral divisions we propose for Alberta, together with our reasons for the proposals.

The Commission was established July 31, 2009. We submitted our Interim Report, as required by section 6(1) of the Electoral Boundaries Commission Act, RSA 2000, c.E-3 as amended (the Act), to you on February 24, 2010. We held an additional series of public hearings and considered well over 500 written submissions commenting on the Interim Report. We are required to submit our final report within five months of submitting the Interim Report. We have therefore completed our mandate in regard to section 8(1) of the Act.

We have appreciated the input from the many Albertans who have participated in this process.

INTRODUCTION

ESTABLISHING THE COMMISSION

This Electoral Boundaries Commission was established on July 31, 2009. Honourable Judge Ernest J. M. Walter, former Chief Judge of the Provincial Court of Alberta was appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in Council as Chair. Appointed as members, by the Honourable Ken Kowalski, Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, were:

Keith Archer, Banff
Peter Dobbie, Vegreville
Brian Evans, Calgary
Allyson Jeffs, Edmonton

The Commission was appointed, and has carried out its work, under the provisions of the Electoral Boundaries Commission Act (Revised Statutes of Alberta, 2000, Chapter E-3 as amended and referred to in this report as the Act). Also under the Act, O. Brian Fjeldheim, Chief Electoral Officer of Alberta, was responsible for providing advice, information and assistance to the Commission.

The first meeting of the Commission was held on Tuesday, August 18, 2009, and deliberations have continued since then. In September, the Commission distributed a Householder to all households in Alberta explaining its work and inviting written comments and appearances at its public hearings.

As required by the Act, the Commission held a series of public hearings across the province in September and October, 2009. The Commission considered the submissions made to it in writing and during the hearings, developed initial boundary recommendations and provided its Interim Report to the Speaker on February 24, 2010. A second series of public hearings was held during April and May, 2010. The Commission considered the submissions made to it in writing and during the hearings, developed its final boundary recommendations and is now presenting its Final Report.

In undertaking its work, the Commission has been guided by the requirements of the Act, relevant decisions of the courts, advice received at the public hearings and in written submissions, and by common sense.

THE LAW

The Act directs the Commission to divide the province into 87 electoral divisions, with a population within 25% of the provincial average, in a way that will ensure effective representation for Albertans.

The Act provides as follows:

> 13 The Commission shall divide Alberta into 87 proposed electoral divisions.
> RSA 2000 cE-3 s13;2009 c19 s4
> 15(1) The population of a proposed electoral division must not be more than 25% above nor more than 25% below the average population of all the proposed electoral divisions.

To assist in ensuring effective representation, the Act also provides that up to four special consideration electoral divisions may have populations as much as 50% below the provincial average:

> 15(2) Notwithstanding subsection (1), in the case of no more than 4 of the proposed electoral divisions, if the Commission is of the opinion that at least 3 of the following criteria exist in a proposed electoral division, the proposed electoral division may have a population that is as much as 50% below the average population of all the proposed electoral divisions:
> (a) the area of the proposed electoral division exceeds 20,000 square kilometres or the total surveyed area of the proposed electoral division exceeds 15,000 square kilometres;
> (b) the distance from the Legislative Assembly Building in Edmonton to the nearest boundary of the proposed electoral division by the most direct highway route is more than 150 kilometres;
> (c) there is no town in the proposed electoral division that has a population exceeding 8,000 people;
> (d) the area of the proposed electoral division contains an Indian Reserve or a Metis Settlement;
> (e) the proposed electoral division has a portion of its boundary coterminous with a boundary of the Province of Alberta.
> (3) For the purpose of subsection (2)(c), The Municipality of Crowsnest Pass is not a town.
> RSA 2000 cE-3 s15;2009 c19 s5

The Act also references the guarantee of effective representation found in the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms. It provides that the Commission may take into account any factors it thinks appropriate and lists factors which must be considered.

> 14 In determining the area to be included in and in fixing the boundaries of the proposed electoral divisions, the Commission, subject to section 15, may take into consideration any factors it considers appropriate, but shall take into consideration
> (a) the requirement for effective representation as guaranteed by the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms,
> (b) scarcity and density of population,
> (c) common community interests and community organizations, including those of Indian reserves and Metis settlements,
> (d) wherever possible, the existing community boundaries within the cities of Edmonton and Calgary,
> (e) wherever possible, the existing municipal boundaries,
> (f) the number of municipalities and other local authorities,
> (g) geographical features, including existing road systems, and
> (h) the desirability of understandable and clear boundaries.
> 1990 cE-4.01 s16;1993 c2 s12;1995 c10 s12

Section 3 of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms states: "Every citizen of Canada has the right to vote in an election of members of the House of Commons or of a legislative assembly and to be qualified for membership therein."

The leading Canadian judicial authority on the meaning of this section is the Supreme Court of Canada's 1991 decision in the Saskatchewan Reference case. In the decision, Madame Justice McLachlin described the issue before the Court as a contest between two competing values – equality of voting power and effective representation.

She stated:

> What are the conditions of effective representation? The first is relative parity of voting power. A system which dilutes one citizen's vote unduly as compared with another citizen's vote runs the risk of providing inadequate representation to the citizen whose vote is diluted.

She concluded that: "the purpose of the right to vote enshrined in s. 3 of the Charter is not equality of voting power per se, but the right to 'effective representation'."

She stated:

> Factors like geography, community history, community interests and minority representation may need to be taken into account to ensure that our legislative assemblies effectively represent the diversity of our social mosaic. These are but examples of considerations which may justify departure from absolute voter parity in the pursuit of more effective representation; the list is not closed.

In summary, the principles of effective representation seem to the Commission to be as follows:

1. Relative parity of voting power.
2. The tradition in Canada is "effective representation," not absolute parity as in the U.S.
3. The process of achieving effective representation may involve diluting the political force of some votes but not unduly and not without reason.
4. The balancing of these interests is a delicate one, which involves an examination in depth of the social history, geography and demography of communities in every sense of the word.

The Commission has considered numerous complex factors, including the Court decisions, the wording of the Act, and the particular circumstances of the electoral divisions which it has visited or which individuals or groups have brought to the Commission's attention in their written or spoken representations.

2006 CANADA CENSUS RESULTS AND THE USE OF MORE RECENT POPULATION INFORMATION

In determining population, Sections 12(1) and (2) of the Act require the Commission to use "the most recent decennial census of population referred to in section 19(3) of the Statistics Act (Canada)" or "some other province - wide census that is more recent than the decennial census of population" plus "the population on Indian reserves that were not included in the census, as provided by the Department of Indian and Northern Affairs (Canada)".

The 2006 Canada Census resulted in an Alberta population of 3,290,350. It was identified that three Indian Reserves were incompletely enumerated with the result that the provincial population was adjusted by 7,288 persons, based on data provided by Alberta Aboriginal Relations. Therefore, the total Alberta population to be used by the Commission based on the Census in recommending the boundaries of electoral divisions is 3,297,638. The issue of net under-coverage in the 2006 Canada Census, in the view of the Commission, has been addressed by the use of the subsequent Alberta Municipal Affairs information and, in any event, could not accurately be allocated to electoral divisions. This was the number used for the Householder, distributed in September, 2009, and subsequently adjusted (see below) with more recent sources of data.

The Act was amended in 2009 by adding Section 12(3) as follows:

> (3) The Commission may use more recent population information, if available, in conjunction with the information referred to in subsection (1) or (2).
> RSA 2000 cE-3 s12;2009 c19 s3

Subsequent to the Householder publication, the Commission considered more recent population information. Alberta Municipal Affairs annually publishes an Official Population List. When the Commission began its work preparing this Interim Report, the 2008 list was available and several of the larger urban municipalities had announced results of their 2009 municipal census. The Commission decided to use the additional population information to determine a "provincial quotient" and subsequently in recommending electoral division boundaries in municipalities where the additional population information was available in a format that permitted its use for these purposes. The 2009 list is now available at http://www.municipalaffairs.gov.ab.ca/mc_official_populations.cfm. The Official Population List identifies that 142 municipalities and the 8 Metis Settlements, representing more than 85% of the total provincial population, have taken a census subsequent to the 2006 Canada Census.

Using the 2009 Official Population List, the population of Alberta has increased by 258,945 since the adjusted 2006 census of 3,297,638. The total population being considered by the Commission is 3,556,583.

Using all of this information, the "provincial quotient", or the average population per electoral division, is

$$\frac{\text{Population}}{\text{\# Electoral Divisions}} = \frac{3,556,583}{87} = 40,880$$

The allowable range for standard electoral divisions under the Act is 51,100 to 30,660 (+/-25%). Any special consideration electoral division could have a population as low as 20,440 (-50%).

DISTRIBUTION OF DIVISIONS

Alberta has been divided into 83 electoral divisions since the 1986 provincial election arising from the report of the 1983/1984 Commission. The distribution of electoral divisions recommended by the 2002/2003 Commission was:

Calgary	23
Edmonton	18
Rest of Alberta	42

In 2009 the Legislative Assembly amended the Act to require this Commission to recommend the areas, boundaries and names for 87 electoral divisions.

The Commission is required by law to divide the existing Fort McMurray-Wood Buffalo division. Its population is more than 88% higher than the quotient and the law prohibits the Commission from recommending a division which has a population more than 25% above the quotient.

Three general options were considered by the Commission:

Option 1 – increase Calgary by 2 additional divisions, Edmonton by 1, Rest of Alberta by 1
Option 2 – increase Calgary by 2 additional divisions, Edmonton by 2, Rest of Alberta no change
Option 3 – increase Calgary by 3 additional Divisions, Edmonton by 1, Rest of Alberta no change

The comparison of these options to the populations is:

			OPTION 1		OPTION 2		OPTION 3
	Population	%	EDs	%	EDs	%	EDs	**%
Calgary	1,065,455	30	25	29	25	29	26	30
Edmonton	782,439	22	19	22	20	23	19	22
Rest of Alberta	1,708,689	48	43	49	42	48	42	48
Total	3,556,583	100	87	100	87	100	87	100

The majority of the Commission, considering all of the population information available to it and the factors affecting effective representation, concluded that the distribution of the 87 divisions should be:

Calgary	25
Edmonton	19
Rest of Alberta	43

The Commission reviewed the average population per division in Calgary, Edmonton and the Rest of Alberta before and after the last two Commissions and before and after this Commission.

	Average Population per Division
	1995/1996 Commission		2002/2003 Commission		2009/2010 Commission
	BEFORE	AFTER	BEFORE	AFTER	BEFORE	AFTER
Calgary	38,404	36,575	41,850	38,212	46,324	42,618
Edmonton	34,239	32,437	35,058	37,006	43,469	41,181
Rest of Alberta	27,824	29,119	33,464	34,181	40,683	39,737

It is apparent that the Calgary average was considerably higher than the others when the last Commission began its work. The disparity was significantly reduced by the last Commission but grew again in the interim period. It would be reduced again by this Commission's recommendation to add two divisions in Calgary, one division in Edmonton, and one division in the Rest of Alberta. The disparity of average population per division between Calgary and the Rest of Alberta, which was more than 10,000 per electoral division prior to the 1995/1996 Commission, would be reduced to about 3,000 following this Commission's recommendations. The variation of the average population per division from the quotient would range from -2.8% to +4.3% (the variations which would have existed for the other Options are also shown here for comparison purposes):

		% Quotient
	AFTER	OPTION 1	OPTION 2	OPTION 3
Calgary	42,618	+4.3%	+4.3%	+0.2%
Edmonton	41,181	+0.7%	-4.3%	+0.7%
Rest of Alberta	39,737	-2.8%	-0.5%	-0.5%

The "Rest of Alberta" category includes everything from sparsely populated areas to the smaller cities, some of which have experienced significant growth since the last Commission.

ARE METES AND BOUNDS DESCRIPTIONS NECESSARY?

In 2007 the British Columbia Electoral Boundaries Commission introduced the concept of replacing the traditional metes and bounds description of electoral divisions with digital maps, both in its preliminary report and in the Electoral Districts Act. That Commission noted that, traditionally, commission written reports are supplemented with printed maps of the proposed electoral districts and with detailed written metes and bounds descriptions of the boundaries of each proposed district.

Alberta's traditional process is similar. The reports of electoral boundaries commissions typically have included maps showing the proposed alignment of electoral divisions and the metes and bounds descriptions for each division. The Alberta Electoral Divisions Act is 82 pages long, of which 79 pages are the metes and bounds descriptions. For the average person, reference to a map is much more informative than the lengthy metes and bounds description in the Act. In addition, these descriptions are expensive and time-consuming to prepare.

The British Columbia Commission said that its goal was "to provide boundary descriptions that:

- are informative to readers (i.e. "what electoral district am I in?");
- give candidates, political parties and election officials sufficient detail for their purposes; and,
- meet legal requirements and that can be easily incorporated into legislation"

The DVD included in this report contains the report, digital maps, the data files and software. The data files include natural features, roads, and appropriate boundaries. The software allows the reader to zoom in so that the maps may be viewed in various display scales. While the DVD will be the official record, the printed maps contained in Appendix E of this report provide an easy reference to the proposed boundaries. The Commission believes that the DVD contents meet the necessary legal requirements and can replace the traditional metes and bounds descriptions found in the current Electoral Divisions Act.

SUMMARY OF THE INTERIM REPORT

The Interim Report generated lively discussion in many areas of the province.

POPULATION DISTRIBUTION

During recent years, Alberta's robust economy resulted in significant population growth. One consequence of this is that the quotient has grown by 10,100 since the 1995/1996 Commission.

Commission	Quotient
1995/96	30,780
2002/03	35,951
2009/10	40,880

In parts of the province where population has remained steady or declined, the increased quotient means that a larger geographic area needs to be included to bring an electoral division in line with the quotient. In areas where population has increased, the increased quotient may result in a lower increase in electoral divisions than the growth numbers alone would seem to indicate. However, the court decisions, as well as the Act, require the Commission to pay close attention to the quotient.

INTERIM RECOMMENDED DIVISIONS

The Commission attempted to respect the requirement for effective representation as guaranteed by the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms. It is worth repeating the principles of effective representation:

1. Relative parity of voting power.
2. The tradition in Canada is "effective representation," not absolute parity as in the U.S.
3. The process of achieving effective representation may involve diluting the political force of some votes but not unduly and not without reason.
4. The balancing of these interests is a delicate one, which involves an examination in depth of the social history, geography and demography of communities in every sense of the word.

While many submissions in response to the Interim Report noted that some of these factors were competitive and had different weights in different parts of the province, the primary factors which guided the Commission's recommendations in the Interim Report were:

A. Population – the Commission attempted to limit the variations in the average population per division. As noted above, the range of variation of the average population per electoral division from the quotient is from +4.3% in Calgary to -2.8% in the Rest of Alberta.

The variation from the quotient of the interim proposed electoral divisions within the categories was:

	High	Low
Calgary	+16.5%	-9.9%
Edmonton	+13.9%	-13.1%
Rest of Alberta	+14.7%	-23.3%
Special	-29.5%	-39.1%

% Variance (+/-)	Calgary		Edmonton		Rest of Alberta		Total		Cumulative
	#	**%	**#	**%	**#	**%	**#	**%	**#	**%
0 to 5	9	36	11	58	21	49	41	47	41	47
5 to 10	11	44	5	26	15	35	31	36	72	83
10 to 15	4	16	3	16	3	7	10	12	82	95
15 to 20	1	4	0	0	1	2	2	2	84	97
20 to 25	0	0	0	0	1	2	1	1	85	98
Over 25	0	0	0	0	2	5	2	2	87	100
Total	25	100	19	100	43	100	87	100	87	100

The set of electoral divisions recommended by the Commission in the Interim Report used population as a prime, but not sole, factor in the determination of effective representation. The two tables above present two ways of understanding population distributions in the proposed electoral divisions. The first table shows the maximum variations in the proposed electoral divisions in Calgary, Edmonton, the Rest of Alberta (excluding the two Special Consideration electoral divisions), and the two Special Consideration electoral divisions (which are by definition more than 25% below the average population). The second table shows the variation in five percent increments in Calgary, Edmonton and the Rest of Alberta (including the Special Consideration electoral divisions). The column entitled "cumulative" presents a running total, and shows among the 87 proposed electoral divisions, 47% are within a range of +/- 5% and 83% of the divisions are within a range of +/-10%. A majority of the Commission concluded that, all things considered, due consideration was given to the importance of population as a factor in "effective representation".

B. Scarcity of Population was recognized in the two proposed special divisions of Dunvegan-Central Peace and Lesser Slave Lake. Dunvegan-Central Peace meets all five criteria for a special division and Lesser Slave Lake meets four of the five criteria. In addition, the majority of the Commission proposed three other electoral divisions, West Yellowhead (-23.3%), Bonnyville-Cold Lake (-15.0%), Peace River (-12.8%) and Lloydminster-Vermilion (-11.1%), which reflect the relatively low population density of those areas.

C. Community Interests – the Commission took into consideration community interests of which it was aware.

D. Community Boundaries – the Commission attempted, as requested by the municipalities, to respect community boundaries throughout the province.

E. Municipal Boundaries – the Commission attempted to respect municipal boundaries. This was not possible in all cases but the Commission attempted to reduce the fragmentation of municipal boundaries resulting from the existing divisions. The recommendations respected the boundaries of both Calgary and Edmonton.

F. Geographical Features - the Commission considered geographical features, including roads, which provide natural barriers between communities of interest. The Commission noted, however, that some presentations suggested that divisions, like the current Edmonton-Riverview which is divided by the North Saskatchewan River, should not be changed.

G. Understandable and Clear Boundaries – the Commission attempted to recommend boundaries which were clear and easy to understand for the residents of the areas. In addition, the Commission used digital mapping technology to describe the boundaries (rather than the extensive written legal descriptions previously used).

H. Distance and Area – this was primarily an issue in the Rest of Alberta. In recommending those boundaries the Commission considered the area of the proposed electoral divisions and the travel distances involved both within the division and between the division and the Legislative Assembly.

I. Inner City Urban Issues - the Commission acknowledged the submissions stressing that inner city urban ridings generally have their own challenges, such as a large number of linguistic and cultural communities, a disproportionate number of people dependent on social programs, increasing numbers of new immigrants and aboriginal people, and other urban issues. However, even with those challenges, some reluctance was indicated to split communities in order to reduce the populations of their divisions.

J. Other Urban Issues – the Commission also acknowledged that, while there may only be one council and one school authority, maintaining relations with a number of community leagues or associations, business revitalization zones and other identifiable organizations, place demands on the time of a city MLA. Suburban city electoral divisions tend to be more homogeneous, leading to a similar desire to keep communities together.

INTERIM REPORT PROPOSALS

Calgary and Edmonton

Within Calgary and Edmonton the boundaries of most existing electoral divisions were proposed to change, primarily resulting from the addition of one or more divisions and to accommodate growth that has occurred since the existing boundaries were established. The Commission attempted to reflect information it received regarding future growth areas in these cities, with the objective that, when the next Commission begins its work, divisions in those areas will not vary as widely from the quotient as had occurred since the previous Commission.

Fort McMurray-Wood Buffalo

Two new divisions were proposed, Fort McMurray-Wood Buffalo and Fort McMurray-Conklin. The existing division is divided along the Slave and Athabasca Rivers and within Fort McMurray, the Lower Townsite and Timberlea areas are included in Fort McMurray-Wood Buffalo; with the remainder in Fort McMurray-Conklin. The populations of both proposed divisions are below the quotient. However, within the Fort McMurray urban area, two new development areas have been approved, one within each proposed electoral division.

Grande Prairie

The Commission responded to a resolution from Grande Prairie City Council by proposing one electoral division entirely within the City and another division including the remainder of the City and much of the large surrounding rural area included in the existing Grande Prairie-Wapiti and Grande Prairie-Smoky electoral divisions. The Commission also proposed that Fox Creek and the surrounding area be transferred from Grande Prairie-Smoky to Whitecourt-Ste. Anne.

Rest of Alberta

Significant changes were proposed for electoral divisions in central and southern Alberta in an attempt to bring populations closer to the quotient. A number of traditional divisional alignments were proposed to be altered significantly.

Special Consideration Divisions

The Commission proposed two special consideration divisions: Dunvegan-Central Peace and Lesser Slave Lake.

PUBLIC INPUT REGARDING INTERIM REPORT

SUBMISSIONS

General

The Commission received well over 500 written comments on the Interim Report and 117 persons addressed the Commission in the April and May public hearings. These submissions are available on the Commission's website as are the Hansard transcripts of the public hearings.

Thirty-seven percent of the written submissions were related to the interim proposed boundaries in the area of the County of Newell and the County of Wheatland. Another 13% were related to including the name "Notley" in a revised name for the Dunvegan-Central Peace electoral division. Sixteen percent were related to the interim proposed boundaries in south central Alberta, 10% to the Grande Prairie area, 8% to Calgary proposals, and 4% to Edmonton proposals. The remaining 12% addressed other issues across the rest of the province.

While most of the written and oral submissions made specific comments about individual electoral divisions, there were various general themes, including:

- an understanding of the need to adjust boundaries because of the four new divisions and the population changes but dissatisfaction with the way interim boundary proposals affected particular electoral divisions;
- major changes in some electoral divisions will disrupt working relationships which had been built up over the years and require starting all over again building new relationships;
- the interim boundary proposals focused too much on population and too little on effective representation, communities of interest, and municipal boundaries;
- a preference for the status quo;
- an appreciation of the difficult task faced by the Commission.

There were also some seemingly divergent themes, such as:

- Some submissions addressed the general distribution of divisions by suggesting that there is an inequality of voting power between electors in the major cities and in the Rest of Alberta, frequently expressed as a perception of a rural vote having greater weight than a city vote. Some submissions suggested that a population higher than the quotient was more acceptable than combining part of the city with a rural area. Some respondents, generally from rural areas, said that effective representation was more important than whether a population was above or below the quotient.
- A number of submissions from rural areas spoke to the impact of large geographic areas on the ability of elected officials to carry out their responsibilities. Others, often from urban areas, suggested that cell phones and the internet could facilitate communication between elected officials and constituents regardless of the distances involved.
- Some presenters saw roads, railroads and rivers as connectors. Others saw them as natural dividers, particularly rivers because they require a bridge to cross.

Some written and oral submissions made representations that the Commission should not be "recommending" four additional electoral divisions. Many recognized that the Commission was bound by the Act to recommend boundaries and names for 87 electoral divisions but wanted to make the point anyway. One submission proposed that the number of electors, rather than population, should be the basis for establishing divisions. Another recommended abandoning the "first past the post" election system and adopting preferential voting, as well as devising a system of weighted voting to give the same weight of vote to all electors.

Calgary

Most submissions to the Commission regarding Calgary were related to the boundaries and names of individual electoral divisions.

Edmonton

Some presenters suggested, either directly, or in passing, that two of the new electoral divisions should be allocated to Edmonton. Edmonton Mayor Stephen Mandel said that Edmonton City Council "urges the commission to consider further redrawing the electoral boundaries on the map to allocate 20 seats in the boundaries of the city of Edmonton. I really believe that this issue of not doing anything until 2019 is a major issue and needs to be addressed." Responding to the proposal in the Interim Report to allocate 19 electoral divisions to Edmonton, Mayor Mandel said: "as far as balance goes in today's world, would be hard to argue with…I think it's going forward that is an issue with the City of Edmonton." Many submissions were related to the boundaries and names of individual electoral divisions.

County of Newell and County of Wheatland

The Interim Report proposed that the western portion of the existing Strathmore-Brooks electoral division be combined with Chestermere and area into a new Chestermere-Strathmore electoral division. The eastern portion south of Highway 1, including the Town of Bassano, was proposed to be added to the Little Bow electoral division. The City of Brooks and area was proposed to be included with Drumheller in a Brooks-Drumheller electoral division.

This generated 180 written submissions which generally argued that the splitting of the existing divisions and, in particular, splitting the County of Newell into three electoral divisions ignored or contravened the principles of effective representation. A wide variety of groups and individuals spoke of the existing effective working relationships, some of which are required to access provincial programs, which would be disrupted by this proposal. Both the County of Newell and the County of Wheatland spoke of their partnerships in a wide variety of services, some of which involve provincial participation. Submissions from Drumheller and area indicated that existing working relationships run north, not south, and so the addition of Brooks would not be a natural fit. Submissions from Little Bow suggested that there are few relationships that cross the Bow River and that Bassano would not be a natural fit with Little Bow communities.

In addition to the written submissions to the Commission, when she appeared before the Drumheller public hearing, Chestermere Mayor Patricia Matthews tabled 123 letters from Chestermere and area residents. All opposed being combined with any Calgary electoral division and all said that they would support the Interim Report proposal for a Chestermere-Strathmore electoral division. Twenty-four said that their first choice would have been a Chestermere-Eastern Rocky View electoral division.

South Central Alberta

For convenient reference, "South Central Alberta" refers to electoral divisions which are generally located between Edmonton and Calgary.

The Interim Report proposed substantial revisions to the divisional boundaries in South Central Alberta. These proposals generated a number of submissions and a coordinated effort by a variety of groups in the area to propose revisions to the existing boundaries that would bring the populations closer to the quotient while reflecting existing communities of interest and the principles of effective representation.

Respondents from Red Deer suggested, similar to the positions of Calgary and Edmonton, that the Commission should not combine a portion of the city with a rural area, as had been proposed in the Interim Report. Red Deer would rather have two electoral divisions entirely within its boundaries even if that meant that the population of both electoral divisions would be higher than the quotient. This enabled the Commission to substantially revise the boundaries proposed in the Interim Report for this area.

Grande Prairie

The Interim Report proposed that the two existing Grande Prairie area electoral divisions be reconfigured into a new Grande Prairie division entirely within the city and a new Beaverlodge-Valleyview division including the northern portion of the city and the remainder of the two existing divisions. The creation of a purely urban division was proposed by a City of Grande Prairie Council resolution and mirrored the divisional alignments in St. Albert and Medicine Hat. The Interim Report also proposed that Fox Creek and area be removed from Grande Prairie-Smoky and added to Whitecourt-Ste. Anne.

This proposal generated a number of submissions requesting that the existing type of alignment be continued so that both MLAs would represent both the city and rural areas. The City of Grande Prairie also reversed its original proposal and recommended that the existing structure of two mixed urban and rural electoral divisions be maintained. The County of Grande Prairie and the smaller communities expressed strong support for this position. There were also a number of requests that Fox Creek and area remain in a Grande Prairie division since its working relationships lie within the Municipal District of Greenview, not to the southeast, and since Fox Creek would have been at the extreme northwest end of the Whitecourt-Ste. Anne electoral division.

Naming of Electoral Divisions

There were a number of submissions related to the naming of electoral divisions, far and away the most suggesting that the name "Notley" be included in the name of the Dunvegan-Central Peace electoral division. Only two of these submissions could be identified as arising from that electoral division. One supported the proposal. The other opposed it on the grounds that the current name clearly indicates the location of the division.

The previous Commission used the names of former mayors of Calgary (Hays and Mackay) and Edmonton (Decore) for three new or re-named divisions. Many submissions noted that the names of former Premiers, Lougheed in Calgary and Manning in Edmonton, have been included in electoral division names for some time. There were also suggestions that electoral divisions be named after former MLAs and Edmonton Aldermen Neil Crawford and Percy Wickman and after Emily Murphy, Henrietta Muir Edwards, Louise McKinney and Irene Parlby of the "famous five" (a division is already named after Nellie McClung).

Summary of Decisions

In considering these submissions, the majority of the Commission decided to maintain the allocation of divisions proposed in its Interim Report.

The Commission decided to:

(a) adjust some boundaries within Calgary and Edmonton,
(b) amend its proposal regarding the Grande Prairie area,
(c) amend its proposal regarding the South Central Alberta area,
(d) amend its proposal for the Wheatland/Newell area, and
(e) amend its proposal for some boundaries south of Calgary.

If Edmonton received two additional electoral divisions, the variation of the average population per division from the quotient would range from +4.3% in Calgary to -4.3% in Edmonton.

	Population	Divisions	Population/Division	% Quotient
Calgary	1,065,455	25	42,618	+4.3%
Edmonton	782,439	20	39,122	-4.3%
Rest of Alberta	1,708,689	42	40,683	-0.5%

The majority of the Commission decided, therefore, to confirm its Interim Report allocation.

In considering the submissions proposing the addition of the name "Notley" to Dunvegan-Central Peace, the Commission noted that the Legislative Assembly had not adopted any protocol regarding the naming of electoral divisions. The Commission generally favours the use of geographical names which provide an indication of the location of the electoral division. Therefore, although it recognizes the contribution of Mr. Notley as an MLA, the Commission has not recommended the inclusion of the name. It has, however, identified in the Issues for Future Consideration section of this report, the advisability of the Legislative Assembly developing a naming protocol for the guidance of future commissions.

EFFECTIVE REPRESENTATION

The Commission was impressed with the submissions it heard at many of the public hearings demonstrating a diversity of views regarding effective representation.

Wheatland County Reeve Ben Armstrong told the Brooks hearing: "With the numbers as they are now, if you take the boundary and move it where you're looking at moving it, you'd change the dynamics. The numbers change. The numbers don't concern me that much. If we're a little less or a little more, that's not an issue; it's the dynamics of what you're making that area into."

Karen Bartsch, also at the Brooks hearing, said: "Finally, I would like to address the factor of representation by population, a very important aspect of effective representation. We understand why you have attempted to limit the variations in the average population per constituency, but in our case I feel we have been treated as numbers to the detriment of all the other factors that were to be considered in guaranteeing effective representation.

We are not just numbers. We are citizens who are passionate about our communities and the relationships we have built within those communities over many decades. We are citizens who are passionate about our government representation in Edmonton. We want to stay as we are. We meet the criteria to do so, and it would result in continuing the effective representation we presently enjoy."

Those submissions are examples of the views expressed by many, including those in Red Deer and St. Albert who suggested that it was acceptable for electoral divisions within their cities to be above quotient. On the other hand, Grande Prairie Alderman, Elroy Diemert said: "Then, of course, equality of the individual vote. Now, I know that that can never be wholly achieved, but in Alberta it is something that we are beginning to take note of and in other areas around Canada, especially in rural areas like Saskatchewan, et cetera. Equality of the individual vote between the rural citizen and the urban citizen in Alberta: we know that the urban vote counts for much less than the rural vote does in this province."

Fred Barg, at the Brooks hearing, said: "Many of the services provided by nonprofit organizations in our communities serve the residents in the entire county of Newell. They have been set up and developed to serve this area, and funding is dependent on supporters from the whole county. Splitting it up would cause unnecessary hardship to many of these very important and worthwhile service agencies. An example of this that immediately comes to mind is the Grasslands Regional FCSS, a co-operative group from Brooks, Duchess, Rosemary, Tilley, and the county of Newell. I'm a volunteer board member of a service agency that receives much-needed and appreciated funding from FCSS. Prior to these groups working together, we needed to make five separate applications where now we do one. It seems to me that separating the area into different electoral districts would jeopardize these types of co-operative working relationships."

There was a widespread perception among many presenters that running an electoral division boundary through the area served by a regional partnership between municipalities or other groups would disrupt the partnership.

County of Grande Prairie Reeve Everett McDonald said: "Electoral boundaries are more than just population. You must also consider the geography of the province, the quality and adequacy of transportation networks, weather, accessibility to the MLA in a timely manner, and communication linkages. To this end, rural Alberta is at a severe disadvantage compared to its urban neighbours. This is particularly true about northern Alberta, where weather plays a major role in its ability to service a riding, where airline transportation is virtually nonexistent, and where roads are in difficult shape after years of pounding by the resource industry." Olds Councillor Warren Smith said: "I submit to you that an MLA serving 40,000 persons in a city, where they can stand on a tall building and see them all, so to speak, has maybe fewer challenges than an MLA such as one of those sitting behind me who serves 40,000 people in a rural riding. They have to make all that travel and do all that business that goes with going to a number of municipalities with different characteristics in each one."

Cell phone and internet facilities are increasingly available across the province, although the service is not always of the quality taken for granted in Calgary and Edmonton. However, many believe that an MLA must see and be seen in order to provide effective representation. Reacting to those types of comments, Edmonton-Centre MLA Laurie Blakeman told the Commission: "I think when I read some of the submissions that came from constituency associations ... there's an expectation that they could, you know, phone and get an immediate meeting with their MLA and chat with them face to face and things like that. Yeah, my folks would like to do that, too, but they don't get the same kind of opportunity to do that because I'm dealing with more people, and it's not possible for me to organize my representation of people in that same way. If my people had the chance to do it the way some of the rural people were talking, I'm sure they'd take it. They'd say, 'Absolutely I want to be able to operate that same way and have that same kind of relationship with my MLA,' but that's not what's available to me as an urban representative."

FINAL PROPOSED ELECTORAL DIVISIONS

The following tables provide the names and populations of the recommended electoral divisions in Calgary, Edmonton and the Rest of Alberta. In many cases, populations significantly above the quotient are the result of the people informing the Commission that maintaining communities of interest, including the decision not to split residential communities, is more important than having a population closer to the quotient.

For the Rest of Alberta, the area of the electoral division in square kilometres is also provided. For comparison purposes, the area of the province of Prince Edward Island is 5,660 square kilometres.

During the public consultation period following the publication of the Interim Report, the Commission received input from many Albertans who recommended changes to the proposed boundaries. In a number of instances, the effect of the recommendations was to give somewhat less weight to the importance of population, and somewhat greater weight to other factors, often described under the rubric of "community of interest", in pursuit of "effective representation". The above tables present a number of ways of capturing the differences in the weight given to population in the Interim Report and the Final Report. The first table shows the maximum variations in the proposed electoral divisions in Calgary, Edmonton, the Rest of Alberta (excluding the two Special Consideration electoral divisions), and the two Special Consideration electoral divisions (which are by definition more than 25% below the average population). The second table shows the variation in five percent increments in Calgary, Edmonton and the Rest of Alberta (including the Special Consideration electoral divisions). For example, looking at the "Total" column in the table above, the Interim Report included 41 electoral divisions (about 47% of the total) that were within +/-5% of the provincial average of 40,880, whereas in the Final Report, 37 divisions (43%) are within that range. Overall, it can be seen that two additional divisions are more than +/-15% from the provincial average. Population continued to be a prime factor in the proposed electoral divisions, and 70 divisions (80.5%) were within the +/-10% range overall. However, other factors identified above were highlighted by a number of the submissions in the public consultations and the Final Report reflects this perspective.

SPECIAL CONSIDERATION ELECTORAL DIVISIONS

The Act provides that the Commission may recommend up to 4 electoral divisions which have a population as much as 50% below the quotient if at least 3 of the following criteria are met:

(a) the area of the proposed electoral division exceeds 20,000 square kilometres or the total surveyed area of the proposed electoral division exceeds 15,000 square kilometres;

(b) the distance from the Legislative Assembly Building in Edmonton to the nearest boundary of the proposed electoral division by the most direct highway route is more than 150 kilometres;

(c) there is no town in the proposed electoral division that has a population exceeding 8,000 people;
(d) the area of the proposed electoral division contains an Indian reserve or a Metis settlement;
(e) the proposed electoral division has a portion of its boundary coterminous with a boundary of the Province of Alberta.

The Act permits a normal variance of +/- 25% of the quotient. Electoral divisions which could be considered for special status would have populations between -25% and -50% of the quotient.

In the following table:
Pop – means the population of the proposed electoral division
% Quo – means the population as a percentage of the quotient
Area – means the total area of the proposed electoral division exceeds 20,000 square kilometres
Dist to LEG – means the distance from the Legislative Assembly Building to the nearest boundary of the proposed electoral division by the most direct highway route is greater than 150 kilometres
Town ➢8k – means there is no town greater than 8,000 population
IR or MS – means there is an Indian Reserve or Metis Settlement
Prov Bound – means a boundary of the electoral division is coterminous with a provincial boundary
Yes – means the division meets the criterion
No – means the division does not meet the criterion

Division	Pop	% Quo	Area	Dist to LEG	Town ➢ 8k	IR or MS	Prov Bound
Dunvegan-Central Peace	24,584	-39.86%	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes
Lesser Slave Lake	28,858	-29.41%	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes	No

Dunvegan-Central Peace meets all five criteria for a special consideration electoral division. The sparse population base in northwestern Alberta is only sufficient to have one regular electoral division and one special consideration division.

Lesser Slave Lake meets four of the criteria. In addition, the Commission noted that this electoral division has a distinctive community of interest since there are 12 Indian Reserves and Metis Settlements and roughly 80 percent of the people in the electoral division are of aboriginal ancestry.

CHANGES TO EXISTING ELECTORAL DIVISION BOUNDARIES

The remainder of this section of the report describes the changes to the boundaries of the existing electoral divisions which were made to produce the recommended electoral division boundaries.

Calgary

The addition of two electoral divisions in Calgary combined with the population growth since the last Commission resulted in boundary changes for most electoral divisions and some new or changed names. Electoral divisions with populations higher than the quotient are generally in areas that are built up. If the quotient increases by about 5,000 by the time the next Commission does its work, these will generally be close to the quotient at that time.

Edmonton

The addition of one electoral division in Edmonton combined with the population growth since the last Commission resulted in boundary changes for most electoral divisions and some new or changed names. The Commission has respected the representations from Edmonton-Riverview that this electoral division should continue to straddle the North Saskatchewan River. Depending on the portions of growth that occur north and south of the river, it may well transpire that the next Commission will need to reconsider that alignment. The Commission maintained the name Edmonton-Rutherford for the general area of the existing electoral division with that name, even though the community of Rutherford is not included in it. The Commission accepted that the electoral division is named after Alberta's first Premier, not after the relatively new community.

Rest of Alberta

Dunvegan-Central Peace

The existing electoral division includes a portion of the Municipal District of Northern Lights at the northern end. This area is included in the Peace River electoral division.

Lesser Slave Lake

Some minor adjustments are recommended to match municipal boundaries. A portion of the southern "stub" is transferred to the Barrhead-Morinville-Westlock electoral division.

Airdrie-Chestermere

This electoral division will no longer exist in its current form. The northeast portion including Beiseker and Irricana is transferred to Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills. The City of Airdrie and rural areas to the east and west become the new Airdrie electoral division. The remainder of the existing division becomes part of the new Chestermere-Rocky View electoral division.

Athabasca-Redwater

This electoral division is renamed Athabasca-Sturgeon-Redwater. Some minor adjustments are made to reflect municipal boundaries.

Banff-Cochrane

A portion of the existing Foothills-Rocky View electoral division south of Cochrane is added to Banff-Cochrane.

Barrhead-Morinville-Westlock

The southern "stub" of the Lesser Slave Lake electoral division is transferred to this electoral division. The area of Sturgeon County north and east of the Alexander Reserve and north of Township Road 552 is transferred to the electoral division from the existing Spruce Grove-Sturgeon-St. Albert electoral division.

Battle River-Wainwright

Paintearth County is transferred to the Drumheller-Stettler electoral division. The portion of the County of Beaver south of Tofield is transferred from the Fort Saskatchewan-Vegreville electoral division. Portions of the County of Camrose currently included in Leduc-Beaumont-Devon, Wetaskiwin-Camrose and Lacombe-Ponoka are transferred to this electoral division.

The northern portion, including Crossfield, is transferred to the Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills electoral division. The remainder becomes part of the new Chestermere-Rocky View electoral division.

Fort McMurray-Wood Buffalo
This electoral division is divided into two new divisions, Fort McMurray-Wood Buffalo and Fort McMurray-Conklin. The existing division is divided along the Slave and Athabasca Rivers and within Fort McMurray, the Lower Townsite and Timberlea areas are included in Fort McMurray-Wood Buffalo; with the remainder in Fort McMurray-Conklin. The populations of both proposed divisions are below the quotient. However, within the Fort McMurray urban area, two new development areas have been approved, one within each proposed electoral division.

Fort Saskatchewan-Vegreville
The portion of Beaver County south of Tofield is transferred to the Battle River-Wainwright electoral division. The portion of Strathcona County north of the Trans Canada Yellowhead Highway 16 is transferred from the Strathcona electoral division to Fort Saskatchewan-Vegreville.

Grande Prairie-Smoky and Grande Prairie-Wapiti
A minor change is made to the boundaries between these electoral divisions within the City of Grande Prairie. The Interim Report proposed that Fox Creek and area be transferred from Grande Prairie-Smoky to the Whitecourt-Ste. Anne electoral division. In response to a number of submissions, Fox Creek and area will remain in the Grande Prairie-Smoky electoral division.

Highwood

The portion south of High River and a small area on the northwest is transferred to the Livingstone-Macleod electoral division. A small portion on the northeast is transferred to the Little Bow electoral division. The remainder is renamed the Okotoks-High River electoral division.

Leduc-Beaumont-Devon

Devon and area is transferred to the new Drayton Valley-Devon electoral division. The area of Camrose County currently included in this electoral division is transferred to Battle River-Wainwright electoral division. The division is re-named Leduc-Beaumont.

The boundary between the electoral divisions within the City of Lethbridge is revised to more evenly distribute the population.

Little Bow

A small area is transferred to this electoral division from the existing Highwood electoral division.

ISSUES FOR FUTURE CONSIDERATION

Various issues were raised with the Commission, in both written and oral submissions, which are beyond its current terms of reference. The Commission consistently pointed this out to presenters but also undertook to raise these as matters to be considered by the Legislative Assembly.

FUTURE TRENDS

If the population growth pattern of the past two decades continues in the future, by far the most significant issue for future Electoral Boundaries Commissions will be the effect of the concentration of population in the Calgary/Edmonton corridor and in the Grande Prairie and Wood Buffalo areas on the distribution of electoral divisions in the rest of the province.

While the Final Report proposes a variety of changes, the decision of the Legislative Assembly to increase the total number of electoral divisions to 87 actually limited the changes in the Rest of Alberta that would have been required if the number had been maintained at 83. The significant number of submissions received opposing the increase in electoral divisions or proposing a decrease seems to indicate that further increases in the number of electoral divisions will need to be carefully assessed.

The Interim Report foreshadowed the type of major changes which future Commissions will need to consider and the reaction in central Alberta is indicative of the impassioned responses that can be expected.

It seems likely that outlying electoral divisions may be fewer and larger in the future. This raises a question about how large a division can be before it involves so many non-common interests that it is impractical for the disparate issues of the electors to be represented, and for the MLA to represent them. Some have suggested that alternative forms of representation, weighted voting and other ideas could be considered.

The Legislative Assembly needs to seriously consider how the urban/rural perspectives will be addressed in the future. The Commission believes that this is a province-wide issue which will have to be addressed, probably before the next Commission is appointed.

CONSTITUENCY OFFICES

Despite the increasing availability of electronic communication modes, the Commission was told several times that in rural Alberta people expect to have personal contact with their MLA. In all cases, they want to be able to meet with someone who will become knowledgeable about their issues. On a day-to-day basis, that contact happens through the constituency offices, which in rural Alberta are frequently considered as government offices. In the large rural electoral divisions, significant travel time is imposed on the constituents to attend a constituency office, even if the office is located in the geographic centre of the division.

Inner city divisions are magnets for people dependent on social programs and for immigrants. Some of the constituency offices in the cities, particularly in the inner city, although easily accessible to most constituents, face challenges related to language, culture, social problem caseloads and the ability to provide competitive compensation for staff.

The Legislative Assembly should consider the resources allocated for constituency offices. Multiple constituency offices may be required to provide reasonable opportunity of access for the residents of the large rural electoral divisions and access to air travel within those divisions would cut down the travel time demands on MLAs. Additional staff resources may be required, particularly in the inner city electoral divisions, to enable urban MLAs to carry out their advocacy functions on behalf of constituents. The Commission realizes that in the current economic environment, increasing the budget is difficult. However, to promote effective representation, the capacity of constituency offices to deal with the concerns of constituents needs to be assessed.

UPDATED POPULATION INFORMATION

The Commission opted to use updated information because the 2006 Canada Census data are more than three years old. The authoritative source for updated information is the Official Population List published by Alberta Municipal Affairs. This list is normally published in early November. There was broad-based support for using updated data.

In order to meet its legislated deadlines, the Commission held its initial round of public hearings in late September and early October. In order to inform the public and provide time to prepare submissions, the information Householder was distributed in September to all Alberta households. At that time, the only population information available was the 2006 census information. Many people making submissions invested a considerable amount of time in analyzing this data as part of preparing their submissions.

However, between the preparation of the Householder and the start of the public hearings, the Commission did receive 2009 municipal census information announced by the majority of the largest urban municipalities. The major effect of this was a significant increase in the quotient from that mentioned in the Householder, which consequently outdated the analyses in the submissions.

There were also considerable technical challenges in incorporating the updated population information into the electronic mapping program which is designed for use with census data that contains a greater level of geographic detail. This was a particular challenge where a municipality is located in more than one electoral division.

If future Commissions plan to use updated population information, it would assist persons wishing to make submissions if the Householder is published once the updated information has been incorporated into the population data so that there is a common data base.

Future Commissions should be appointed early in a calendar year. This would result in Canada Census population data being current if the appointment is in the year following the census. It would also result in the current Municipal Affairs Official Population List being available if the Canada Census data is more than a year old.

Naming of Electoral Divisions

The submissions suggesting that the name of Grant Notley be included in the name of the Dunvegan-Central Peace electoral division, and other similar suggestions to name electoral divisions after persons, posed a conundrum for the Commission given the lack of guidance for naming electoral divisions. The last Commission used the names of former Mayors of Edmonton and Calgary, two of whom subsequently served in other elected office, for electoral divisions in those cities. Three electoral divisions are currently named after former Premiers: Edmonton-Rutherford, Edmonton-Manning and Calgary-Lougheed.

Generally, the Commission has tried to maintain existing electoral division names. In cases where significant changes have been made to electoral division boundaries, the Commission has used geographical features or municipal names which describe the electoral divisions, since they indicate the location of the divisions.

The Legislative Assembly may wish to consider adopting a protocol for the naming of electoral divisions for the guidance of future Commissions.

ALBERTA ELECTORAL BOUNDARIES COMMISSION MINORITY POSITION

Allyson Jeffs, Member

The majority of the Commission is recommending a new electoral map for Alberta that would include 87 electoral divisions allocated as follows:

Calgary	25 seats
Edmonton	19 seats
Rest of Alberta	43 seats

I disagree with this allocation and, instead, propose the following:

Calgary	25 seats
Edmonton	20 seats
Rest of Alberta	42 seats

This is Option 2 as set out on page 5 of the Commission's report. It would provide an additional seat to Edmonton beyond what is being proposed by the majority of the Commission.

An additional electoral division is required in the Rest of Alberta to accommodate the growth of Fort McMurray. Adding this seat while keeping the Rest of Alberta at 42 seats may be accomplished by reallocating a seat from existing constituencies to keep the overall number at 42.

The Commission proposal also calls for the creation of two Special Consideration divisions – Dunvegan-Central Peace and Lesser Slave Lake. I am in agreement with the proposal to create these two specific Special Consideration constituencies even though their combined population is 53,442 – approximately 131 percent of the population of the average provincial electoral division and less than the population of the current Edmonton-Whitemud constituency.[1] The particular challenges faced in representing these two northern Alberta divisions are readily apparent given their size and sparse population.

However, the travel, communication and logistical difficulties of representing these constituencies are unique and are not readily applicable to other rural constituencies which are smaller, which lie along or near major transportation arteries and which have more ready access to an airport. For these reasons, I believe a constituency could be reallocated from the Rest of Alberta while still ensuring effective representation there.

Edmonton Representation

Raising the number of Edmonton electoral divisions to 19 from the current 18, as the majority of the Commission proposes, would restore Edmonton to the level of representation which the city first received 14 years ago, in 1996. The 19th seat was allocated to Edmonton upon the recommendation of the 1995/1996 Electoral Boundaries Commission.

[1] The Commission has established a provincial average population per constituency of 40,880 people. The sparse populations permitted in the Special Consideration constituencies means that two MLAs represent a combined population of 53,442 or about 1⅓ the size of an average constituency population. On average, two MLAs would be expected to represent a combined population of 81,760 people.

A majority of the 2002/2003 Electoral Boundaries Commission recommended reducing Edmonton's representation to 18 seats. This recommendation was enacted by the Alberta Legislative Assembly notwithstanding the city's growth, significant public outcry and objections raised by Commission Member Bauni Mackay in her Minority Position Paper (available at http://www.altaebc.ab.ca/interimrptappendices.html#appB).

Restoring Edmonton to 19 seats does not sufficiently recognize the city's population growth. Nor does it address the concerns raised by Edmontonians and others that Alberta's urban voters continue to be representationally disadvantaged when compared to their rural cousins.

Population Growth

In 1996, Edmonton's population was 616,306. According to the most recent city census, completed in 2009, Edmonton's current population is 782,439 – an increase of 27 percent or 166,133 people. Between 2008 and 2009 alone, Edmonton's population grew by 30,027, more than Calgary's population increase of 22,563 during the same period.

Edmonton and Calgary are Alberta's two major cities, together comprising 52 percent of the provincial population. Calgary's population growth has resulted in increased representation in the Legislative Assembly while Edmonton's has remained static or declined. Between 1996 and 2009, Calgary's population grew by 297,373 people or 38 percent and its representation grew by 2 MLAs.[2] If the recommendations proposed by the majority of the Commission are adopted, Calgary's representation will have increased by a total of four MLAs. Edmonton will have recovered the electoral division removed following the 2002/2003 boundary review but will have no net increase in electoral seats despite its significant growth.

Under the terms of the Electoral Boundaries Commission Act, the next Commission cannot be convened for at least eight years with the result that the recommendations made by the majority of the current Commission, if followed, will shape the electoral map until at least 2018. The legislation permits up to 10 years between the appointment of Commissions, so the boundary changes enacted as a result of the current review may be in place until 2020.

If Edmonton is represented by 20 MLAs, the average population of each electoral district will be 39,122 people or 4.3 percent below the provincial average of 40,880. This is well within the acceptable range set out in the Electoral Boundaries Commission Act and will be more than offset by population growth before the next electoral boundary review is initiated. Growing Forward, the Capital Region Growth Plan, March 2009 (available at http://www.capitalregionboard.ab.ca/images/Documents/Plan/crb_growthplan_e.pdf) forecasts Edmonton's population in 2018 to be between 900,833 and 902,583, an increase of about 15 percent from the current population.

[2] The 1995/1996 Boundaries Commission which recommended 19 seats for Edmonton recommended 21 seats for Calgary. The 2002/2003 Boundaries Commission recommended 18 seats for Edmonton and 23 seats for Calgary. Both Commissions used Canada Census data in arriving at their recommendations. The 1995/1996 Commission used 1991 census data and the 2002/2003 Commission used 2001 census data.

If Edmonton is represented by 19 MLAs, the average population per electoral district will be 41,181 or 0.74 percent above the provincial average. However, boundary drafting is about more than simple arithmetic. Once communities of interest, natural boundaries and future growth patterns within the city are taken into account, this average will be spread across the city in such a way that some electoral districts will be as much as 12 percent below the average while others will be 10 percent above the average.

Edmonton Mayor Stephen Mandel attended both sets of hearings on behalf of Edmonton City Council and urged the Commission to increase Edmonton's representation by two electoral divisions. During the first set of hearings, he remarked upon the sustained and significant growth Edmonton is experiencing. He also noted the need for the provincial capital to be appropriately represented in the Legislative Assembly to ensure that its collective voice may be heard:

"We are a growing city, a city with an increasing intensity of urban issues caused by growth and concentration of people, whether the need for effective transit or the challenge of the homeless, urban needs and challenges which our citizens believe must receive proper focus from within the legislative Chamber, focus that becomes most possible when a fairly balanced level of representation is applied."

"We're a capital city, with a pride of place, and with citizens who fully value the role played by the Legislative Assembly and who will be looking for transparency and logic and fairness in this process."

Following the publication of the Interim Report, Mayor Mandel attended the second set of hearings to voice Edmonton City Council's support for Option 2 which would see Edmonton's representation increase to 20 seats, Calgary's increase to 25 seats and the Rest of Alberta remain unchanged at 42 seats:

"Since the 2006 federal census the population of the city of Edmonton has increased by over 60,000 to a current population of 782,439 people. The capital region growth plan is projecting the city's population to be over 900,000 people by the end of the next commission report in 2019. It's important to recognize the city's recent growth and to ensure appropriate representation as the city continues to grow."

"…as I stated the last time I appeared before you…Edmonton is not only the capital of the province; it is an engine of economic growth for the region, the province, and the nation. As such it requires equitable representation in the Legislative Assembly of Alberta. Edmonton city council supports Option 2 and urges the commission to consider further redrawing the electoral boundaries on the map to allocate 20 seats in the boundaries of the city of Edmonton."

Mayor Mandel suggested that representation would be improved, particularly for growing urban centres if provincial electoral boundaries were reviewed more frequently.

"I would suggest that you would do this every five years or every four years. Then you'd be able to make the adjustments in a reasonable time frame and then you could perfect the system…."

Effective Representation

The present Commission is tasked with recommending the allocation of four new seats, bringing the total number of electoral divisions to 87 from 83. This is the first time in more than two decades that a Commission has been given the statutory mandate to increase the number of provincial representatives when drafting proposed boundaries. It provides an opportunity to adjust representation in a forward-looking manner.

Edmonton is one of two major cities in an increasingly urbanized province. It is appropriate that the city receive two additional seats in the Legislative Assembly at this juncture. Edmonton voters who saw the previous Commission remove a seat from Edmonton to accommodate more rapid urban growth in Calgary may feel their representation in the Legislative Assembly is compromised if the Legislative Assembly does not do more than restore the 19th seat first allocated in 1996. Such a decision may be particularly unpalatable when representation is being preserved in regions of the province where populations have plateaued or are declining.

It is interesting to note that the majority of the Commission has recommended its allocation of seats, in part, because of a concern that if Edmonton and Calgary each receive two additional seats, the average population of an Edmonton constituency would be 4.3 percent below the average while the average Calgary constituency would be 4.3 percent above the average. Notwithstanding that this would put the average in both cities within 5 percent of the provincial average, the majority of the Commission found this unacceptable.

However, the majority of the Commission has recommended maintaining a number of rural constituencies where the populations fall well below the provincial average. Of note are constituencies with low populations whose boundaries will remain unchanged from their present configuration. Bonnyville-Cold Lake (15.04 percent below average); Vermilion-Lloydminster (11.14 percent below average) and West Yellowhead (23.34 percent below the average) all fall into this category.

Any attempt to redraw these boundaries to bring these areas closer to the population of the average provincial constituency will be left for a future Commission.

Rural Representation

During the course of the public consultation, a significant number of written and oral submissions raised concerns about perceived inequities between the value of urban and rural votes. It seems clear that the preservation of representation in sparsely-populated rural constituencies when urban constituencies are ballooning continues to be controversial in some quarters of the province.

Edmonton Mayor Stephen Mandel noted that the recommendation proposed by the majority of the Commission will reinforce the imbalance between urban and rural voting strength for the next decade, particularly with respect to the two major cities – Edmonton and Calgary.

"If you look at the growth of both Edmonton and Calgary and the reduction in growth of the rural areas, there is already an imbalance that you're putting into the formula right now…If the trend continues, then the growth of both Edmonton and Calgary will probably substantially increase against the other parts of the province, and there will be this continuing inequity."

The method of analysis adopted by the Commission has made it difficult to respond to these concerns. During its deliberations, the Commission has viewed representation in terms of three key areas, Edmonton, Calgary and the Rest of Alberta. I would strongly recommend that future commissions avoid this method of analysis.

As a category, the Rest of Alberta includes cities such as Red Deer, Grande Prairie and Lethbridge as well as rural electoral divisions and the Special Consideration areas which by statute may be up to 50 percent below the population of the average provincial electoral districts, provided certain criteria are met. Averaging the deviation from the quotient in this widely divergent group of constituencies effectively masks the inequities in voting parity which continue to trouble many Albertans. They will find no comfort in assurances that the boundaries recommended by the majority of the Commission, if adopted by the Legislative Assembly, would leave the average constituency in the Rest of Alberta with a population 2.8 percent below the provincial average.

This "average" includes the Special Consideration constituencies of Dunvegan-Central Peace which is nearly 40 percent below the provincial average and Lesser Slave Lake which is nearly 30 percent below that average. Also included are sparsely-populated constituencies that fall outside the Special Consideration category such as West Yellowhead (23.34 percent below average), Bonnyville-Cold Lake (15.04 percent below average), Peace River (12.03 percent below average), Vermilion-Lloydminster (11.14 percent below average) and Whitecourt-Ste. Anne (9.86 percent below average).

These low-population constituencies are averaged with constituencies in more populated areas such as Spruce Grove-St. Albert (15.15 percent above average), Red Deer-South (12.27 percent above average) and Red Deer-North (8.62 percent above average).

These inequities within the Rest of Alberta are likely to widen since most of the low-population constituencies have populations which are declining or platueauing while those constituencies which are presently above the average are expected to grow before the next Commission is appointed.

Speaking at the Edmonton hearings, Edmonton-Centre MLA Laurie Blakeman expressed concern about "the preservation of a rural voting privilege" in the face of increasing urbanization of the province.

"The government insists on maintaining the same number of rural seats even though the population is static or declining. I think that seats should be redistributed from rural areas with static or declining populations to the cities…I think two seats should be going to Edmonton, three to Calgary and at this point that would mean you'd need to cut an additional two seats from rural areas."

I recommend future Commissions attempt to find some method of attempting a nuanced analysis that more clearly identifies the discrepancies in rural urban votes. I note that the previous Commission attempted to deal with this issue by analyzing the distribution of constituencies in major cities (Edmonton and Calgary), urbanized areas and rural areas.

The presence of hybrid constituencies, those which are neither completely urban nor completely rural, may present a challenge for this analysis. Grande Prairie is an interesting case in point. Traditionally, the area has been split into two hybrid constituencies each including half the city of Grande Prairie and a surrounding rural area. In its Interim Report, the Commission recommended a new division which would provide one completely urban Grande Prairie constituency with a portion of the city and the surrounding rural area comprising the second constituency. This recommendation was in keeping with a request from Grande Prairie City Council. City Council later rescinded that request and as a result, the Commission is recommending the traditional configuration in its Final Report.

At the Grande Prairie hearings there was a dearth of city residents or organizations attending to speak about the Interim Report recommendations or the change of heart by City Council. However, representatives from the rural areas attended to state their support for maintaining the status quo. Although the number of MLAs representing the city and the region would have remained the same under the Interim Report recommendation, many in the rural areas saw this as a loss of an MLA, as if regional cooperation would be more difficult if one constituency was completely urban.

Illustrative was the comment of Sexsmith Mayor, Claude Lagace who said his community of 2,500 people is "well served" by having two voices in the Legislative Assembly.

"Having two MLAs at present allows us to lobby both and works out well for us for that part. We'd like it to remain the way it is because we haven't seen any adverse effect of it."

Public hearings

7(1) The Commission must hold public hearings both

a) before its report is submitted to the Speaker, and
b) after its report has been made public,
c) at the places and times it considers appropriate to enable representations to be made by any person as to the area and boundaries of any proposed electoral division.

(2) The Commission shall give reasonable public notice of the time, place and purpose of any public hearings held by it.

1990 cE-4.01 s7; 1993 c2 s8

Amendment of report

8(1) The Commission may, after considering any further representations made to it and within 5 months of the date it submitted its report, submit to the Speaker a final report.

(2) On receipt of the report, the Speaker shall make it public and publish it in The Alberta Gazette.

(3) If the office of Speaker is vacant, the report shall be submitted to the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly, who shall comply with subsection (2).

1990 cE-4.01 s8;1995 c10 s6

Commission report

9 If there is more than one report submitted under section 6 or 8, the report of a majority of the members of the Commission is the report of the Commission, but if there is no majority, the report of the chair is the report of the Commission.

1995 c10 s7

Report to Assembly

10 After the Commission has complied with sections 6 to 8, the final report of the Commission shall,

a) if the Legislative Assembly is sitting when the report is submitted, be laid before the Assembly immediately, or

b) if the Legislative Assembly is not then sitting, be laid before the Assembly within 7 days after the beginning of the next sitting.

1990 cE-4.01 s9;1995 c10 s8

New electoral divisions

11(1) If the Assembly, by resolution, approves or approves with alterations the proposals of the Commission, the Government shall, at the same session, introduce a Bill to establish new electoral divisions for Alberta in accordance with the resolution.

(2) The Bill shall be stated to come into force on Proclamation and, if enacted, shall be proclaimed in force before the holding of the next general election.

1990 cE-4.01 s10

Part 2
Redistribution Rules

Population

12(1) Subject to subsections (2) and (3), in this Part, "population" means the population of Alberta as provided in the most recent decennial census of population referred to in section 19(3) of the Statistics Act (Canada), from which the population of all proposed electoral divisions is available, plus the population on Indian reserves that were not included in the census, as provided by the Department of Indian and Northern Affairs (Canada).

(2) If, in the opinion of the Commission, there is some other province-wide census that is more recent than the decennial census of population referred to in section 19(3) of the Statistics Act (Canada), from which the population of all proposed electoral divisions is available, the population of Alberta for the purposes of this Part is to be determined

a) by that province-wide census of population, and

b) with respect to the population on Indian reserves that are not included in the census, by the Department of Indian and Northern Affairs (Canada).

(3) The Commission may use more recent population information, if available, in conjunction with the information referred to in subsection (1) or (2).

RSA 2000 cE-3 s12;2009 c19 s3

Electoral divisions

13 The Commission shall divide Alberta into 87 proposed electoral divisions.

RSA 2000 cE-3 s13; 2009 c19 s4

Relevant considerations

14 In determining the area to be included in and in fixing the boundaries of the proposed electoral divisions, the Commission, subject to section 15, may take into consideration any factors it considers appropriate, but shall take into consideration

- a) the requirement for effective representation as guaranteed by the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms,
- b) sparsity and density of population,
- c) common community interests and community organizations, including those of Indian reserves and Metis settlements,
- d) wherever possible, the existing community boundaries within the cities of Edmonton and Calgary,
- e) wherever possible, the existing municipal boundaries,
- f) the number of municipalities and other local authorities,
- g) geographical features, including existing road systems, and
- h) the desirability of understandable and clear boundaries.

1990 cE-4.01 s16; 1993 c2 s12; 1995 c10 s12

Population of electoral divisions

15(1) The population of a proposed electoral division must not be more than 25% above nor more than 25% below the average population of all the proposed electoral divisions.

(2) Notwithstanding subsection (1), in the case of no more than 4 of the proposed electoral divisions, if the Commission is of the opinion that at least 3 of the following criteria exist in a proposed electoral division, the proposed electoral division may have a population that is as much as 50% below the average population of all the proposed electoral divisions:

- a) the area of the proposed electoral division exceeds 20 000 square kilometres or the total surveyed area of the proposed electoral division exceeds 15 000 square kilometres;
- b) the distance from the Legislature Building in Edmonton to the nearest boundary of the proposed electoral division by the most direct highway route is more than 150 kilometres;
- c) there is no town in the proposed electoral division that has a population exceeding 8000 people;
- d) the area of the proposed electoral division contains an Indian reserve or a Metis settlement;
- e) the proposed electoral division has a portion of its boundary coterminous with a boundary of the Province of Alberta.

(3) For the purpose of subsection (2)(c), The Municipality of Crowsnest Pass is not a town.
